RECORDS IN QUICK CASE SUSTAIN JUDGE'S COURSE

Political Animus Behind Attacks on Mr. Quigley Revealed.

MURDER WAS AVOIDED

Recent newspaper articles have attacked the integrity of Judge Quigley in connection with the detention of one William R. Quick in the Centre County Jail, charging that he is unlawfully and unjustly confined therein without having been accorded a hearing and without any justification whatever, but for political or other ulterior motives.

For the information of all law-abiding citizens the following history of this case is given, based upon the records and reliable information:

Upon an information made by his wife, Daisy Quick, for desertion and non-support, William R. Quick of Snow Shoe was arrested on December 30, 1922 and entered bail for his appearance at the February term of court. Monday, January 8, 1923 was fixed by the Court to hear domestic relations cases and this case was called Wednesday, the 10th. After hearing the evidence, the defendant was directed to pay his wife for the support of their children (William R. aged 13, Sarah M. aged 11, and Vincent R. aged 9) the sum of $50.00 per month, dating from January 15, 1923, a payment to be made the first of February, 1923, and on the first of each month thereafter. He was also directed to pay the costs of prosecution within thirty days and was released on his own recognizance. The defendant is a carpenter and at the time of his arrest was working at his trade in Philipsburg, this county. It was ascertained by the Court that the amount ordered to be paid was well within his income.

On June 20th, at the request of the District Attorney, a bench warrant was issued upon information that he had not made the payments as ordered. He was taken into custody by the sheriff on the 22nd of June and lodged in the Centre County Jail. His attorney, William G. Runkle, Esq. (who represented him at the original hearing and subsequently) with the District Attorney appeared before the Court and stated that the husband and wife had entered into an agreement (subject to the approval of the Court) whereby the wife was to go to her mother at Munson, taking with her the daughter, for whose support the defendant was to pay $20.00 per month, and the defendant was to maintain and provide for the two boys at his home in Snow Shoe with his mother as housekeeper. This arrangement was approved by the Court on the 27th of June and the defendant released on his own recognizance. The wife immediately went with her daughter to her mother's home. The mother of the defendant went to Snow Shoe but within a week or two went back to her home in Altoona, taking with her the younger of the two boys—the older one going to the father at Philipsburg.

On the 8th of August Mrs. Quick appeared before the District Attorney and reported not only the non payment by her husband of the amount directed to be paid by him to her for the support of her daughter, but that her life had been threatened and exhibited a high powered revolver, a stick of dynamite and a blackjack that her son had taken from his father's room after hearing him make threats that he would kill her. Upon this showing the Court again directed the issuance of a bench warrant and the defendant was again taken into custody and lodged in the Centre County Jail.

After various conferences between Mr. Runkle and the District Attorney the Court made an order on September 12th liberating the defendant on his own recognizance, with the understandign that his wife was to re-establish the home in Snow Shoe for the time being with the three children in order that they might go to school, and that the defendant should go to work at his trade in Philipsburg where he had regular employment and to pay monthly to the Snow Shoe Bank for the support of his children the sum of $50.00. Growing out of these various interviews accusations were made by the husband as to the wife's infidelity, and by the wife as to the husband's infidelity. Recent developments would indicate that the husband's suspicions were founded on fact, and the Court was also in possession of information that indicated clearly that the husband was unfaithful to his wife. When the last arrangement was made whereby the wife was to return to Snow Shoe with the children and the husband to Philipsburg, it was with the understanding that both of them would conduct themselves in a proper, orderly manner until such time as might seem advisable for either one of them to proceed to obtain a divorce.

The defendant was brought to the Centre County Jail Sunday morning October 7th, where he has been confined ever since. He was taken into custody by an officer of the law in Snow Shoe to prevent murder, growing out of the evident infidelity of his wife whom it is reported he found in his home early that morning in company with a young man of that community.

A local newspaper has seen fit on different occasions since then, and particularly during the recent political campaign just finished, to publish articles reflecting on the integrity of the Court, to the effect that this injured husband is being persecuted and the young man whose name is connected with the affair is being protected because his father is a political factor. The injured husband is detained in the jail because he ignored three different orders of the Court as to the support of his children. The trouble of

BROTHER WITNESSED CRUEL MILL TRAGEDY

Frank Wingard Cut in Four Pieces by Circular Saw.

MOTHER NEAR SCENE

Frank Wingard, a widely known sawmill operator, met a tragic death on Tuesday morning when he was almost instantly killed as the large circular saw on the mill cut his body into four pieces while his brother, George Wingard, witnessed the heartrending scene unable to help.

The brothers had put their mill on the Allison property near Potters Mills, known as the Pine Hill tract, some time ago. Frank was operating the mill carriage and George was offbearing, taking the sawed lumber away. The second log had just about been finished, the last cut in making it into plank being completed. Frank was leaning toward the saw and his clothing caught. Quick as a flash the teeth took hold and his body was drawn against the saw. It cut him in twain directly through his abdomen, severed diagonally his left leg between the knee and hip and cut away his left arm at the shoulder.

The deceased was born and reared at Coburn. He was 46 years old and is survived by his mother, who has been camp cook for her sons and was near when the accident occurred; his widow, whose maiden name was Della Gates; one son, Coleman; one brother, George and two sisters, Mrs. George Hosterman, of Aaronsburg, and Mrs. Maud Kerstetter, of Coburn.

COLLEGE AUTO DAMAGED

Ray Gilliland and Two Sons Escape Injury.

Ray Gilliland, druggist at State College, and his two sons, escaped injury, but their Haines Six touring car was considerably damaged in an accident that occurred along the state road east of Lemont on Friday evening about 7 o'clock. Mr. Gilliland and his sons had started on a trip to Snow Shoe. The former, when requested for an account of the misfortune, said:

"There is a bad place in the road at the top of the hill, east of the new concrete bridge at Lemont, between the properties of Christ Houck and Dan Grove. It should be reported to the state highway department as I have been told several accidents have occurred at the same place. One rear wheel of my car got into this hole, which is at the rear of the macadam and caused by the ground giving way. This swung me from the road and I went over the embankment for several feet and hit a pole about 15 or 20 feet from the hole, which damaged my car considerably."

Paroled to Care for Family.

Martin Oscars, sentenced at September term of court to serve six months in jail for bootlegging, was paroled on Tuesday by Judge Quigley, who had received a petition signed by 85 residents of Snow Shoe and vicinity, pleading that the man be permitted a parole so as to work and care for his family.

October 7th has nothing to do with his present incarceration, except that Centre County would probably now be facing a murder trial had he been allowed to be at large. The conduct of his wife and her paramour is reprehensible and will without doubt be brought to the official attention of the Court in proper time and they, if convicted, will be punished as the situation demands. The young man in question, if convicted, being single, faces a maximum sentence of One Hundred Dollars fine. This is the only penalty provided by the Act of Assembly.

The alleged protection given, even if true (which is absurd to say the least) is insignificant by comparison with the protection of the defendant himself from the commission of the gravest crime known to the law—that of murder.

If any responsible financial citizens, and particularly those who have seen fit to criticise the actions of the Court in this matter, will come forward with a bond which will guarantee the support of his three children, which the law requires of him, and assume the responsibility that if turned loose he will not commit murder, he will be released from custody. These children, by order of the Court made the 26th of October, have been placed in charge of the Boys' Industrial Home, the Girls' Industrial Home and The Home for the Friendless, all of Williamsport, at the cost of the county, with an order of the Court that the defendant reimburse the County of Centre for all expenses in this connection. This order was made after it had appeared to the satisfaction of the Court that neither William R. Quick, nor his wife, Daisy Quick, were fit persons for their care and custody. In arriving at the conclusion of the unfitness of the father of these children to care for them the Court is in possession of definite information that while the defendant was accusing his wife of infidelity he was not without fault in this respect and his conduct generally was reprehensible.

Gain Notoriety As Butchers

Killing of Heifer and Porker Brings Serious Complications For Alleged Offenders.

Missing one of the prettiest animals of his herd of young cattle, Edgar Fisher started something that is bringing notoriety to two men who have been residing near Bellefonte for some time—George Taylor and Paul Hetrick—and who now face a long term in the penitentiary. The very boldness of their operations and the similarity between their case and that of Irv Gray and his sons make an affair that will be followed with closest interest.

Mr. Fisher missed the heifer, a pet among his farm stock, when the herd came to the barn about noon last Thursday. Going to the field where the cattle had been in pasture, investigation showed that the animal had been slaughtered.

The matter was promptly reported to District Attorney, James C. Furst, who with Sheriff Dukeman accompanied Mr. Fisher and a further investigation was made. The Fishers reside on the old Kitchen farm, the first to the right of the road east of Milesburg, at the Kitchen gap. Mr. Fisher's sons had visited the pasture field on the evening of the 14th and the young cattle were then allright. Evidently, the missing heifer had been slaughtered on the night of the 14th.

Following a trail that was difficult to trace at times, the course taken by the butchers was found to go toward the run, known as the overflow from the Milesburg Water Company's reservoir. Soon the investigators were rewarded by finding unmistakable evidence. The front quarters of the animal had been cut from the rear ones and left along the little stream.

The trail led on and indicated that the meat had been taken to the house formerly occupied by Charles Schad and family, along the south side of the mountain. This house has been occupied by Taylor and his wife, formerly Mabel Emil Shawley. Both have served terms in the Western penitentiary on being convicted of bigamy some time ago in the Centre County court. Residing with them was Paul Hetrick, sentenced from York County on a serious charge and who had served in the Eastern and Western penitentiaries at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, completing his prison term at Rockview about a year ago. He had since worked at White Rock and some ago went to reside with the Taylors.

The men each told a story, according to the District Attorney, which implicates them and was, in substance, that they went hunting on the 14th, taking with them a .22 calibre rifle. They said they were going for wild turkeys and that, when they reached the field, they were tempted to kill the heifer. Hetrick is alleged to have shot the animal between the eyes after being persuaded by Taylor to do so.

The heifer was then rough dressed and carried along the trail already indicated. The men admit, it is alleged, that they became tired of carrying it as it weighed in the neighborhood of 300 pounds, so that they stopped along the stream and cut it in two, taking the rear quarters to the Schad house, mounted on a sapling, where the meat was cut in pieces and put down in salt.

They had intended to come back, they said, to get the front quarters but were too tired until they got the other meat put away (about 2 o'clock in the morning) and so left the front quarters for the crows.

Sheriff Harry Dukeman, accompanied by Howard Smead and W. H. Geissinger, then went to the Taylor home on Tuesday morning and got even more evidence on the men. Finding a quantity of pork put down in pickle as well as the beef, the men admitted, it is alleged, the following remarkable story:

On the night of 9th or 10th of November they had driven to the Western penitentiary at Rockview, slipped quietly into a pen of hogs and had, unnoticed, stuck a porker that dressed about 140 pounds, let it bleed sufficiently and then loaded it onto the buggy, bringing it to their home, where it was cut up and put in crocks.

Taylor and his wife, the latter as an accomplice, and Hetrick, were all placed in jail, saying that they would waive a hearing and finding by a grand jury and would plead guilty at a special session of court.

WOMAN STABBED HUSBAND.

In Jail, Commission Finds Her Mind Is Deranged.

A butcher knife, broken in two at the hilt, is silent testimony of a stabbing affair that was staged in a home near Morristown on Sunday evening. Pauline Presta and Joseph Carwelli, the man with whom she had been residing, were the principals and the former is in jail awaiting further orders. A commission in lunacy examined her the forepart of the week and found that her mind has been deranged.

From what could be learned, The man and young woman had taken out a marriage license at the office of Register Frank Sasserman on Oct. 20th and thought they were married. Finding that they were mistaken, arrangements had been made for their wedding this week.

Then came the quarrel on Sunday over some little matter and Miss Pauline grabbed the butcher knife and stabbed Carwelli in the chest with such force that the blade was broken when the point struck a rib, fortunately preventing a serious ending. Carwelli was also cut on the hand in attempting to defend himself, but none of his injuries are considered serious.

CORONER'S REPLY

Mifflin County Coroner Learns Nothing of Skeletons.

In reply to a letter addressed to the Coroner of Mifflin County regarding the finding of skeletons in the Seven mountains, the following reply is self explanatory:

"Not a thing to report as far as I can learn.

Yours respectfully,
W. Arthur Barr, Coroner."

"Rooters" Upset.

A sedan, loaded with "rooters" for Penn State, starting on Friday at noon for Philadelphia to be on hand for the varsity football game, met with disaster at the cut by the new concrete bridge east of Lemont. The sedan got beyond control and upset on the embankment. It was considerably damaged but the occupants escaped without serious injury.

Whooping Cough Here.

The first case of whooping cough was reported this week and the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Forsnerg, on Curtin street, has been quarantined, their child having the disease.

BARY'S FATAL FALL

Died Several Days After Falling on Kitchen Floor.

Robert, little son of William and Mary Durkee, who reside in the Thomas property at Thomas and Lamb Sts., died on Wednesday morning as the result of injuries received when he fell last Saturday. The babe was but 9 months old and just learning to walk. The loss of his bright little face in the home is keenly felt.

The little child had attempted to climb to the kitchen table and pulled the oil cloth from it, causing him to fall on his face, and his cheek struck the kitchen floor. His jawbone seemed very sore and a physician was summoned. He discovered that the jawbone was cracked and a bealing formed under the child's left eye, causing death at the time stated.

Robert Durkee was the seventh child in the family. Surviving are his parents, four sisters, Blanche, May, Myra, and Louise, and two brothers, William and Frederick. Burial will be made tomorrow in the Lutheran cemetery at Pleasant Gap.

Motorist Held for Court.

Charged by H. W. Browall, of State College, with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, James B. Wilson, of Salona, was held for trial at Clinton County court in the sum of $300 bail by Alderman John P. Anthony, of Lock Haven. Browall alleges Wilson ran into his automobile, badly damaging it, and Wilson declined to pay the sum demanded to cover the damage.

Car Upset, Occupants Escaped.

A Ford car owned by Joe Stover, of Axe Mann, but for some time past employed at Monument, was damaged slightly when it upset on Friday evening on the embankment at what is known as the Seven hills, east of Bellefonte. The occupants escaped injury. The car was towed to the Poorman garage for repairs.

Russell—Hill.

Boyd F. Russell, of Lock Haven, and Mrs. Alma A. Hill, of Bellefonte, were married in Lock Haven, at the Church of Christ on Saturday afternoon by Rev. H. F. Rector. They were attended by Orville Harvey, of Lock Haven, and Miss Edna McClincy, of Bellefonte.

TO LAUNCH DRIVE FOR $100,000 FOR HOSPITAL

Representative Meeting of County Communities in Court House

STATE COLLEGE PLANS

An unexpected surprise was sprung on those who attended the public meeting held in the Court House here on Monday evening to ascertain about the future of the Bellefonte hospital. Representatives from State College let it be known that the citizens of our neighbor town had planned to put on a campaign for funds from which to erect a community hospital there but, after discussion, seemed favorable to concentrating the effort in one grand effort to give Centre County a first class hospital.

The State College residents will hold a public meeting on next Monday evening at that place, when the matter will be considered and a committee of Bellefonte men will attend. State College, being so close to Bellefonte, will very likely put on their drive and add it to the general fund to make the local move successful, it is said.

The general opinion was that the drive should be put on for the full $100,000 so that the hospital might be remodeled and put on a footing as among the best in the east, an effort deserving of general support from every person in the county.

Definite plans for putting on the drive will be mapped out later and announced. There was diversified opinion about employing a campaign expert to take charge of raising the fund, at a reasonable salary. Those in favor of this plan advanced as argument that such a man would do the work well and his effort should be worth his pay. Those who did not agree, as their principal argument, said all the money should be kept in the fund for the hospital.

WILL COLLECT TAX

Borough Manager Seibert Given 1922 Water Tax Balance.

The Keystone Power Corporation turned in the remaining water taxes to be collected for 1922 to the Council at the regular meeting on Monday evening. The tax remaining to be collected is $3,789.16. Borough Manager Seibert was given the list with instructions to collect.

Haagen Brothers made application for installing a 500 gallon gasoline tank at their garage on North Thomas street. This was held over for action at a later date.

The fire and police, water and street committees made routine reports.

W. H. Geissinger, who has been serving as policeman, on motion was suspended. A motion was also adopted that all uniforms of outgoing officers be turned over to the borgess to avoid additional expense.

The finance committee reported notes for renewal and interest paid for $25,000. A check of $53.25 was received from the state highway department.

J. M. Cunningham complained of lighting on South Potter street and suggested that a light near his property be moved to the junction of Fairview and South Potter streets and that a new light be placed near Shope's planing mill, so as to properly light the street. This was referred to the street committee with power to act.

Notice of shipment of the sewer pipe to be laid on Lamb street near the High School property was reported.

A complaint of a pole alleged to interfere with the operation of Haagen Brothers garage on Thomas street, was received and the matter referred to the fire and police committee.

Fire at Office Building.

Fire caused by a spark from the chimney lighting on an awning over a window on the first floor of the American Lime and Stone Company office building on North Thomas street, caused considerable damage to the west side of the structure on Tuesday morning. While the alarm was sounding, the town clock struck 6 and many alarm clocks awakened early risers from their sleep. The firemen responded and got the blaze extinguished in good time. The building, being a frame structure, the flames charred the woodwork from the first to the third floor and the roof was slightly damaged. The loss is covered by insurance.

Hunter Lost Hand.

Jacob Auman, of Spring Mills, on the 14th, had his left hand shattered by shot when his gun fell, after he had stood it against a tree to peep into a hole, where he thought a rabbit was hiding. The hand was amputated in the Bellefonte hospital, where Mr. Auman is a patient.

DEATH ENDS PRISON TERM OF HOWARD MAN

B. P. Swartz, Convicted in Centre County, Served Six Years.

FOUR YEARS REMAINED

B. P. Swartz, a native and lifelong citizen of lower Bald Eagle valley, died last Friday in the Western penitentiary at Pittsburgh while serving time for writing a threatening letter. Death was caused by tuberculosis.

The case of Swartz was prosecuted by W. H. Thompson, who had a livery stable in Howard, and was in the Centre County court in 1916. It was an interesting case and an expert on handwriting, G. G. Zeph, of Altoona, was one of the principal witnesses. He gave testimony which tended to prove that the writing of Swartz and the writing of the letter were alike, and that the letter was written by Swartz. The letter was found fastened on the door of Thomson's livery and contained a demand for a sum of money within three days or the building would be fired.

Swartz was convicted and Judge Quigley sentenced him. He then appealed his case to the Superior Court and the decision of Judge Quigley was upheld. Swartz being taken to Pittsburgh in Jan. 1917, where he served time until his death. His sentence was not less than 10 years nor more than 15 years, so that there remained four years to serve.

The deceased was born at Beech Creek and was 68 years old. He is survived by his widow, who was Mary White, and three children: Betty, at home; Harry, of Pittsburgh, and Blanche, in Ohio. The body was brought to Howard and burial made in Schenck's cemetery on Monday afternoon.

AUTO WRECKED

Police Investigating Mix-Is Reported as Serious Offense.

John Ishler, of Boalsburg, will not likely forget his experience in Bellefonte on last Thursday night when his Ford automobile was wrecked so badly that he has offered to sell it for junk. The car was found in the yard, at the Bishop St. school property, on Friday morning and it was taken to the Beatty garage where it was learned repairs would cost in the neighborhood of $200 if damaged parts were replaced. Police are investigating and will seek to ascertain who started the car on its wild dash.

Mr. Ishler came to town to call on a friend. When his car was missing and he could not find it, he reported the matter to the police. Whether the car was started on its dash to destruction for a joke or for other reasons, it is a serious offense and will prove costly if the police can fasten the blame on the party who did it.

The car struck a tree at the southeast part of the school yard after it had run across Logan St. and over the gutter and pavement. It hit the tree with such force that the radiator was smashed and the motor was broken, as well as other parts of the car damaged. Had it not been for the tree, the car would have struck the school building and damaged it.

BENT TATE HURT

Three Ribs Fractured and Bruised in Anto Mishap.

Bent Tate, pioneer telephone workman in Centre County with the Bell Telephone Company, met with a rather serious misfortune on Sunday afternoon. His Ford coupe was damaged considerably and Mr. Tate suffered severe bruises and three fractured ribs, while his companion, a niece, Mrs. White, of Altoona, was bruised but fortunate in not having any bones broken.

The accident occurred along the state road west of Pleasant Gap at the Zettle farm. As Mr. Tate drove by the farm, another car was unexpectedly driven to the highway from a lane and it struck the coupe, pushing it from the road and upsetting it. The coupe was driven to the Beezer garage for repairs.

Crashed on Bridge.

A Ford car, driven by a man from Centre Hall, and a Cadillac touring car, owned and driven by Chas. H. Tressler, of State College, collided on the High St. bridge over Spring creek in Bellefonte on last Friday evening. One wheel on the Ford was broken, but none of the occupants was injured and the Cadillac was not damaged. Mr. Tressler was driving to Philadelphia with students to attend the big football game between Penn State and U. of P. on Saturday. He continued his trip.

A Lone Honeymoon.

On board ship the passengers quickly strike up an acquaintance with one another, and there was no exception to this rule on a ship that was cruising round the coast of Sweden.

Among the passengers was a young doctor, who struck up a slight acquaintance with a French student, who seemed in remarkably good spirits.

"You seem happy," remarked the doctor as the student came up to him with a laugh and a skip.

"Who wouldn't be?" was the reply. "I'm on my honeymoon."

"On your honeymoon?" said the doctor, surprised. "Then where is—"

"Ah!" said the student. "You wonder where my wife is? Well, the money wouldn't run to two, so I had to come alone."

HORSE PASSING IN MARYLAND

Retiring From Transportation Field at the Rate of One and One-Half Per Cent a Year.

Old Dobbin is retiring from the transportation field on the state roads at the rate of 1½ per cent a year.

Traffic tests taken on the main arteries of the state roads system show that he is exactly 1.45 per cent weaker as a competitor to the motor driven vehicles than he was last year. The tests covering 48 hours were taken recently. In the old days when horseflesh was supreme on the roads Sunday was his big day. The recent Sunday tests show now that on 24 roads the horse-drawn vehicular traffic was only 82-100 of 1 per cent of the entire traffic. Dobbin's big day is Tuesday. Then he can claim only 4.98 per cent of the entire traffic.—Baltimore News.

Test This Out for Yourself—

MANY people who drink coffee regularly are troubled with insomnia; or they feel nervous, "headachy," or suffer from indigestion.

It may be hard for such men and women to believe that coffee is responsible for the way they feel. Because they have always drunk coffee, it hardly seems possible that this old habit could cause trouble.

But there is one sure way to find out whether coffee is harming you. Just stop its use for a week or so, and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine, the drug in coffee, which disturbs the health and comfort of many.

After a week or two on Postum, you will sleep better and feel better; then your own good judgment should decide whether you go back to coffee or continue on the Road to Wellville with Postum.

Sold by grocers everywhere!

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

Crawls Into Firebox; Fights Off Rescuers

Cumberland, Md.—Opening the door of the firebox of his locomotive, Emil Thermes, twenty-eight years old, crawled into the flames and was burned alive.

The suicide was seen by the engineer and a brakeman. They tried to pull Thermes from the fire, but he was too strong for them. He got a death grip on the sides of the grates, pulled himself further into the flaming furnace and was consumed.

What remained of the body was recovered by the use of a scraper and clinker bar.

Insanity from brooding over the recent death of his mother is believed to have prompted Thermes to end his life.

Thermes was a fireman on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad and ended his life while his engine was in the yards at Fayette City.

DOG SAVES MASTER'S LIFE FROM BEAR'S DEATH HUG

Hunter Has Narrow Escape From Death When Attacked by Female With Cubs.

Camden-on-Gauley, W. Va.—H. V. Jarrett, cross-tie contractor of Three Forks, had a thrilling fight with a bear and two cubs, in which his two dogs also figured, and he displays the carcass of a bear weighing 220 pounds, a rifle with marks of a bear's teeth on the stock, a badly lacerated chest and right arm and a hunting shirt torn to ribbons as evidence.

Jarrett, about seven miles from Three Forks, picked up the trail of a female bear and two cubs. The bear had entered a thicket clump of laurel and the hunter's two dogs, one a seasoned bird dog, the other an eighteen-month-old "green" dog, rushed into the attack.

After pushing his way through the thicket, Jarrett was confronted by the mother bear making for the young dog, which was in full flight. The bear was about twenty feet away when Jarrett first saw her and was coming down the hill erect with front paws high in the air. Jarrett had time to fire only one shot, a roar of rage showing that it had taken effect, but before he could throw another cartridge into the barrel of his rifle, the bear was at arm's length and reaching for him. Jarrett turned his rifle end for end and jammed the stock into the bear's mouth, then backed away to escape the claws, which were rapidly tearing his shirt to shreds.

After he had backed against a fallen tree, the upper side of which was about four feet from the ground, the hunter had about made up his mind that he was powerless against the onslaught of the bear's paws.

Suddenly the young bird dog rushed from behind its master, where it had sought protection, and started snapping at the bear's hind legs. The mother bear turned and made a vicious swipe at the dog, but the brief seconds were enough to give the hunter time to whirl his rifle around, throw in another cartridge from the magazine and fire. The bullet entered the bear's side, broke her back and she dropped in her tracks.

Meanwhile the older dog, which had chased one of the cubs up a tree, returned at the sound of the shots and, seeing the bear tear up the ground, sprang at her and almost lost his life. The wounded bear clawed at his throat, slashing it open and just missing the jugular vein.

Burglar Traps Installed in Big Office Buildings

Chicago.—The gentleman burglar who operates in skyscrapers will have it much harder as the result of a plan inaugurated by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Photographs, descriptions of dress, peculiarities and, in the case of known burglars, measurements of these men who are known or suspected of belonging to the gang of skyscraper burglars will be sent to every elevator starter and every doorman of every large building in the United States.

Officials of the association are confident that an organized gang of highly talented crooks operate in skyscrapers. They give as the reason for this belief that skyscraper burglaries come in epidemic form, the latest being prevalent in San Francisco. The system used in the Golden Gate city is precisely the same used in other cities during the past two years.

The method used is for some well dressed and well educated member of the gang to work his way into the good graces of some high social set. He gains the confidence of numerous men of affairs and learns the probable location of money or securities in these men's offices. He then learns the time when the securities will probably be in the office, and the job is put through in accordance with this information.

YOUNGEST MAYOR A MEMBER

Thomas H. Quinn Chosen Chief Executive of Faribault, Minn., When Only Twenty-Two.

Only a short time was necessary for many war veterans to obtain prominence in civil life following discharge from the service, as demonstrated by the career of Thomas H. Quinn, an American Legion member, who is probably the youngest mayor in the United States.

Quinn was first elected mayor of Faribault, Minn., in April, 1921, when he was only twenty-two years old. He achieved such a good record in office that he was re-elected in 1923 for two years.

Born in Faribault, Quinn was educated in the public and parochial schools, St. Thomas college and St. Paul College of Law. Graduated from the latter institution in 1919, he found that he was too young to be admitted to the bar. He obtained a position with the internal revenue service in 1919 and remained in that work until August, 1920, when he opened a law office in Faribault.

Quinn is president of the Southern Minnesota Baseball league and a director of the Minnesota Municipalities league. He was largely responsible for the success of the recent convention of the Minnesota department of the American Legion held in Faribault, and is prominent in activities of the veterans' organization throughout the state.

TO BURY VETERANS OF WARS

Not Exceeding $100 to Be Allowed for Interment of Participants in American Conflicts.

Information has been sent to all posts of the American Legion concerning the payment of funeral expenses for indigent World war veterans by the United States Veterans' Bureau. A sum not exceeding $100 will be paid where it is shown that the deceased did not leave sufficient funds to defray expense of burial.

In addition to this payment transportation charges will be paid by the government from place to death to that of interment, if it is within the continental limits of the United States. Burial in national cemeteries will follow if requested.

Proof that the veteran is indigent, that no money or property is due him, and that relatives refuse to provide such funds is required.

This ruling will relieve many posts of the Legion frequently called upon to pay funeral expenses of war veterans dying in their locality, without funds. The ruling applies to veterans of all American wars.

To Provide Playground.

Because demand for increased school facilities had necessitated building on property formerly utilized as a playground in Bridgewater, Mass., the children of the city had no place for recreation. The American Legion in Bridgewater, realizing the need of school children, took the initiative in securing such grounds by circulation of a petition calling for a special election by the townspeople, with a view to the purchase of certain tracts for recreation purposes.

Chinese Torture.

Shrill wails of torment were issuing from the inside of the house, but eight-year-old Bertie, seated on the piazza steps, seemed totally unconcerned.

"Heavens!" called a neighbor. "Your little brother must be frightfully ill."

"No, not 'zackly," confided Bertie. "He just pulled down a jug of molasses in the pantry on him, an' maw's combin' his hair fer Sunday school."—The American Legion Weekly.

Auxiliary Helps Boy Scouts.

An appropriation of $150 was recently made by the American Legion Auxiliary unit in Seaside, Ore., so that the local troop of boy scouts might carry on their annual work. The women of the auxiliary also presented the troops with a stand of national colors.

POST SETS AN EXAMPLE

Some one wanted to know what Kankakee post of the American Legion in Kankakee, Ill., had done to justify its existence. Some one else prepared a summary of its achievements. And the summary is going the rounds of the press as an example of what a Legion post can do in the way of making itself useful in a community.

The Kankakee post relieved last winter 250 transient cases and prevented those in distress from becoming temporary charges on the charities of that city. It investigated a large number of cases which proved fraudulent and drove from the town 85 fakes who were endeavoring to enlist sympathy and get money from the public.

It has a record of supervision and care of disabled men, of hospital visitation, of loans extended to worthy service men in need of temporary assistance, of comradely attention to the sick, and of Christian burial of the dead. It has looked after the compensation claims of soldiers, and has stood between them and harpies who prey on the unprotected and uninformed.

Kankakee's organization of the nation's defenders is typical. It points with pride, and there are others which are anxious to match records with it. Collectively, these records tell what the Legion has done for the commonwealth and the nation, as well as what has been accomplished for the communities with Legion posts. — Illinois State Register.

TO AID MENTALLY ABNORMAL

Soldiers' Relief Commission Will Interview Veterans in Oklahoma Penal Institutions.

All veterans in penal institutions of Oklahoma will be interviewed and examined by members of the Soldiers' Relief commission, with special attention to cases of men mentally abnormal. This action was suggested for every state in a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the American Legion's national executive committee. The veterans' organization will co-operate in the Oklahoma survey.

Representatives of the commission will gather complete data on each veteran, to be used in assisting the men entitled to federal compensation, war risk insurance, and other allowances. Vocational training classes and a series of libraries will be established in the institutions as a means of helping prisoners to rehabilitate themselves in civil life.

A survey of the prisons of Wisconsin revealed that 60 per cent of the former service men confined therein were mentally abnormal, 60 per cent suffering from disabilities due to World war service.

To Try Again for Trophies.

Distribution of captured war trophies is held up because congress, before it adjourned, failed to pass legislation requested by members of the American Legion permitting captured and surrendered relics to be given to cities and towns throughout the country. The cost of distribution of these trophies is estimated at $250,000. Under provisions of the bill introduced through the Legion's efforts, they would go to the various states according to the number of men sent to the armed forces. The bill will be reintroduced at the next session of congress, so that, if passed, trophies may be finally disposed of and placed on exhibition throughout the United States. In the meantime the War department is caring for 3,000,000 cannons, machine guns, rifles and other pieces of fighting equipment of the enemy.

May Have Home in Park.

If a memorial park is opened by civic authorities in Patchogue, N. Y., a site for a home for the loyal post of the American Legion will be provided. This determination was recently reached by the city council when Legion men appeared at a meeting seeking inclusion of a location for their building. Conclusion was reached that the new home might also include administrative offices for city officials, and the edifice will be erected jointly with the Legion.

To Erect Memorial Home.

Veterans at Harrison, N. Y., are campaigning for funds with which to erect a memorial home for use of veterans of all wars. The drive is led by the local post of the American Legion and the goal has been set at $18,000. The building will follow the plans of Independence hall in Philadelphia, and will be dedicated to the soldiers and sailors of 1776, 1812, 1845, 1861, 1898 and 1917-18. The major portion of contributions was borne by the Legion post and members of the organization.

Beacon Announces Meetings.

One of the most novel means of attracting post members to a meeting of the American Legion is utilized by George Washington post, the pioneer post of the organization in the nation. In the recent process of remodeling the clubhouse a pole, ten feet in height, was installed on the cupola of the building and a colored electric beacon placed at the top of this. When the beacon is lighted it signals to the members that a meeting is to be held.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK FOR WORLD

Writer Says America May Learn Lesson From Europe Which Will Make Her Greatest Nation.

"Europe, as a whole, is an experiment in force," writes Lincoln Steffens in an article in which he surveys Europe as a vast laboratory in which experiments have been made in every form of social and economical government; bolshevik, socialist, anarchist, labor and world government. From these experiments, according to Mr. Steffens, America may learn a lesson which will make her the greatest nation that has ever existed. Continuing his article, Mr. Steffens says: "The war was an explosion of force. It blew up the whole laboratory, and a chemist would have inferred that the mixture he had made was explosive. He would not have blamed some poor maimed workman; he wouldn't even have said that glycerin was 'bad' and that nitrogen was 'good.' Not in chemistry. But in politics, he did. The professors everywhere were patriotic. They did not ask what caused the war. 'Who?' was the question they asked and answered. And so we have the same men who 'made the war' making the peace, and consistently trying to carry out in their treaties 'the just purpose of the war,' and suppressing all new ideas, begin laboring conscientiously and hard to set up the very same combination of social, economic and political elements which, having exploded before, is apt to explode again, as it does.

"All these European experiments are working with theories of force, and it is humanly dramatic and scientifically interesting that the opposite theory, the Christian doctrine of nonresistance, should be taken up for trial by Asia. The Indians are resisting British rule without force, by slow, patient disobedience and co-operative self-reliance. The British empire has arrested, tried and convicted Gandhi, their leader, just as the Roman empire did Jesus; but Christianity was not suppressed, and the Gandhi movement moves on, an experiment on one of our theories, that there is some moral way to free man from men's laws without learning and heeding God's laws.

"Behind Asia in the process of evolution, Europe is ahead of us and Africa, but we backward peoples are on the way; we are traveling along the same old road, and so, some day, we shall be where Egypt, Greece, Rome and poor old Europe are now, if we don't watch out."—Century Magazine.

Strength of Plywood.

Plywood is wood of any variety that has been cut by a machine into thin layers and glued together in such a way that the grain of one layer runs at an angle to the grain of two adjacent layers. The strength of a plywood panel, in two planes greatly exceeds that of steel. With some wood, by combining cuts, it is even possible to get greater resistance to stress in all three planes than steel affords, although it is rarely necessary to go so far.

Ordinary wood used for airplane construction is not required to withstand severe stresses in more than two planes. What plywood means to airplane construction is well illustrated in the case of the Haviland machine. Before that method of using wood was invented the best airplane wing weighed 7.95 ounces and was capable of sustaining a load of only 91 pounds. Since then the plywood rib used on the Haviland weighs 5.12 ounces and will carry a load of 274 pounds.

"Pressed Wood" as Fuel.

It is said that in California "pressed wood" is a fuel that has become more or less popular. Fuel for domestic purposes has always commanded high prices in southern California, and consequently some one perceived the opportunity to win wealth from waste by utilizing a part of the great quantities of shavings and sawdust that is annually thrown away or at best used to poor advantage in sawmills, planing mills and similar establishments. So this ingenious person invented a machine for pressing shavings and sawdust into molds. A string through the center of the mold helps hold the material together, and the heavy pressure to which it is subjected is all that is necessary to accomplish the rest.

Correction.

The man was before the court on the charge of being drunk and disorderly on the previous evening.

The policeman who had arrested him had given evidence and the magistrate asked the prisoner if he had any questions to ask the witness.

"Yes," said the man. "If you are so certain of the details of the case why don't you call your fellow policemen to corroborate you?"

"There's only one constable in the village," replied the witness.

"But I saw two myself last night," said the indignant visitor.

"That is just the charge against you," retorted the policeman, with a smile.

He May Have Been Extra Weary.

"You may like to know," said the landlord when he was making out his bill, "that General Lafayette once slept in the bed you occupied last night."

"Did he?" the motoring tourist replied. "He must have been some sleeper."

SHE GAINED IN WEIGHT HEALTH AND STRENGTH

Philadelphia Woman After Taking Earle's Hypo-Cod Feels Better Than She Has For Years

Mrs. A. M. D. Holloway of 1905 Montgomery Avenue, Philadelphia writes as follows: "I was in a very run down and weakened condition, I had no appetite or ambition, and could not sleep at night. I had lost considerable weight and was nervous and very irritable. I just had to force myself to do my house-work, and I was always completely exhausted before night came. My husband had been reading a great deal about Hypo-Cod, and decided that it would help me. One day he brought a bottle home, and I started to take it. From the very first I began to feel better, my appetite came back and I started to gain in weight, and the hollows in my cheeks and neck began to fill out, and I felt better than I had for a long, long time. It is certainly a wonderful tonic, and a health builder, and I don't believe that I will ever be without it in my home. It has made a new woman out of me, and I now enjoy the best of health and am happy to give this credit to Hypo-Cod." Over a million and one-half bottles of Hypo-Cod have been sold, and thousands benefited just as Mrs. Holloway has been, and we urge you, if you are weak and in a run down condition to get a bottle from your druggist today, or send One Dollar ($1.00) to the Earle Chemical Company, Wheeling, W. Va., for a full sized bottle to be sent you prepaid.—Advertisement.

It comes with every sack of cement. It has been made possible through the Portland Cement Association by the eighty-six cement manufacturers who are its members.

They realized that important research and educational work was necessary to give people the best information on how to use cement. They also realized that this could be done better by unified effort than by any individual company alone.

As a result, you may have for the asking the benefit of this Association's long and exhaustive studies on how best to use cement for the most satisfactory results in concrete construction.

Whatever use you plan to make of cement—whether you are building a concrete hog house or concrete dairy barn, a stretch of concrete walk or a concrete road, a silo or a skyscraper, a home, workshop or a factory—you needn't guess. You can know.

If you want information about the usefulness of concrete under certain conditions, how to mix or place it to get the greatest value out of every sack of cement—you can get it by writing any one of our 28 offices listed below.

Supplying dependable information without charge by booklet, by letter or by personal conference when necessary, is the work of this Association. Millions of helpful booklets, covering a multitude of uses of concrete, are distributed annually to people who know they needn't guess—who know they can get the facts from us.

One of our new booklets, "Concrete in Home Sanitation," will surprise you with the number of easy ways in which concrete can be used to make the home healthier and happier. Address our nearest district office for your free copy.

ATTACKING THE COURTS

During the recent political campaign in Centre County, a part of the propaganda used by a local Democratic newspaper was a series of articles dealing with the so-called Quick case, originating in Snow Shoe Township. The articles in question constituted an attack on Judge Quigley, but the motive was plainly so political that the matter was ignored by this newspaper and most others in the county. Judge Quigley being a Republican, the attacks on him were calculated to create resentment toward the Republican ticket. Had the matter ended there, most persons might have viewed it simply as a vote-making factor in a shrewdly planned Democratic campaign, and with the election over thought nothing further about it.

Outside the county, however, some persons seemingly have viewed the attacks on Judge Quigley personally as criticisms on the integrity of the Court. Where the honesty and integrity of our Courts is challenged the matter at once assumes an aspect so grave that it dare not be ignored, particularly at a time when so much unrest prevails and people generally may accept as true anything which is charged and not explained or denied. Even the slightest reflection upon the Judges is calculated to undermine public confidence in the Courts. Confidence in the Courts once destroyed, it is but a step to Bolshevism.

That persons outside the county have viewed the political criticism on Judge Quigley as in reality attacks on the integrity of the Centre County Court, was impressed upon our people when a few days ago the Philadelphia "North American" published a wholly one-sided article relating to the Quick case. Anybody reading the article in question might have supposed that the Centre County Court, as a matter of political favoritism, has for months past confined a man in prison, denying him the right to a hearing or trial, persecuting him, in fact, with methods employed only in Soviet Russia. Apparently the "North American" did not examine the official records but based its articles on street gossip or the word of irresponsible persons. For the sole purpose of correcting the erroneous impression of the matter, recently given such wide publicity, we present in another column, a plain statement of the case, taken from the public records which records are open to inspection at any time. With the facts in hand, it becomes the duty of the "North American," as a reputable newspaper, to present the matter fairly and impartially to its readers.

Represented at Harrisburg.

Centre County Republican women were represented at the first convention of the Pennsylvania State Council of Republican Women, held at Harrisburg, Nov. 12—14, by Mrs. George Zeigler, of Philipsburg, vice chairman of Centre County; Mrs. John Porter Lyon and Mrs. Roy Wilkinson, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Croker, of State College. A special feature of the convention was a banquet at the Penn—Harris Hotel the first day. The speakers were Senator George Wharton Pepper; Hamilton Fish, of New York, and vice chairman of the National Republican committee; Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton. On Tuesday evening the convention enjoyed a delightful social occasion as supper guests of Governor and Mrs. Pinchot at the executive mansion.

New Sewer at State College.

Very soon the new sewer in State College on Burrows street, between Beaver and Fairmont avenues, will be completed. Then our neighbor town will have about two and one-half miles of sewage. Thirty workmen have been engaged on the project on Burrows street and the work has been handicapped considerably by rock. The sewer line is being laid six feet under ground and large quantities of dynamite have been used in blasting away the rock. Almost a solid stratum of lime stone rock seems to underly State College and this makes excavating very difficult. The new system of sewage replaces the many cesspools formerly used and which were considered very undesirable and a menace to the health of the community.

Want Basketball Games.

The Advertising Club of Williamsport will again place a basketball team on the floor. A very successful start, for a new team, was enjoyed last year, and a good number of victories were accounted for. A schedule is now being arranged and the Club would like to hear from such teams as Sunbury Y. M. C. A., Berwick, Northumberland, Milton, Montoursville, Bloomsburg, Lewisburg, Lock Haven, Jersey Shore, Canton, Mansfield Normal, etc. Managers communicate with L. W. Seward, 1211 Isabella St., Williamsport, Pa.

Local Teams Win In Football.

The Bellefonte High School gave their rivals, Philipsburg High School, on the latter's field a great walloping on Saturday afternoon, winning with a score of 40—13. The local team, with a large company of rooters, went to Philipsburg in Emerick busses. Next Thursday, the Bellefonte High School will clash with State College High at State College. This game, it is freely predicted by the sport lovers, will rank among the most interesting of the games in Centre County this year. Penn State on Saturday defeated U. of P. at Philadelphia with a score of 21—0 Wilson starred in this game. The Bellefonte Academy trimmed the Carnegie Tech team at Pittsburgh on Friday, 40—0. The score indicates just what happened when Carnegie Tech faced the stronger Academy eleven.

Injured by Explosion.

John Jacobs, employed in the coal mines at Cato and who is about 42 years old, was very painfully injured on Friday about noon, when a premature explosion of dynamite caused particles to strike him on the face and right hand. While both eyes are injured, it is thought the sight of one may be saved. He is a patient in the Lock Haven hospital.

National Quartette's Fine Program

The opening number of the Lyceum course of concerts at the Court House by the National male quartette last Thursday evening was a most entertaining program and every number was well received. Walter E. Munroe, as pianist and baritone, also a manager of the quartette, rendered excellent numbers as pianologues. Wayland Simms, as an impersonator could not be beaten. His make up in "The Village Cut-up" was in contrast with the dress suit and kept the audience in a continuous laugh. The saxaphone selections by George Turnbull were excellent. His deep bass voice in "Asleep in the Deep" and "On the Shore" was very pleasing. Wyman Moore, as second tenor and violinist, gave classical numbers on the violin, giving compositions of his own as encores. The Philippine quartette will give the next concert on December 13th.

Highways Built by State.

Since the department of highways began its intensive road construction program early in 1919, 2,164 miles of modern-type pavement have been constructed in Pennsylvania, department officials said. On Nov. 8, the department had consstructed 316 miles of durable highways during the present season.

OVER THE COUNTY

Seward Decker, of Spring Mills, who has been in ill health for some time is reported in a critical condition.

The Gerninger homestead in Aaronsburg was sold for $900 by the administrators, the Bellefonte Trust Company, to Walter G. Rupp.

The butchering season has started. Throughout Centre County many large porkers will be dressed for family larders during the next six weeks.

The second doe received by the Bellefonte hospital was killed Wednesday of last week and delivered here on Thursday. The deer met its death by breaking its neck when it collided with a fence, and was dressed by Deputy Game Warden Ira Gramley, who was on his way to Livonia to hunt when he saw a number of persons looking toward the deer, north of the Wallace Walker farm. It seems the deer became frightened at a passing auto truck and raced wildly into the fence. It was a doe, somewhat larger than the one which the hospital secured the week preceding.

A community Christmas tree for the city of Duquesne has been purchased from Thos. H. Motz, of Woodward, and will be selected from among three on the tract which is located in Pine Creek hollow. C. F. Korman, a son of Adam Corman, of Millheim, in company with C. H. Burris and Thomas Hughes, of Duquesne, spent considerable time at Woodward and vicinity before a tree that suited their needs was discovered. The tree is a very pretty pine, about 60 feet in height. It will be cut down with great care, will be crated and conveyed to Coburn, where it will be loaded upon two flat cars for shipment. It has been customary for years for the steel company at Duquesne to donate a community Christmas tree to the city and to pay all expenses for erection, trimming, etc., the whole cost being about $7,000.

George Goodhart, of Centre Hall, has shot 35 bucks of various kinds this fall on the dam at the Red Mill.

A new sign of good dimensions, placed at the crossing of the roads to State College at Pleasant Gap, has been indicating that too few motorists see what they are passing. Frequently the motorists go on through Pleasant Gap, over the mountain to Centre Hall and then—they ask the direction to State College.

A Chevrolet sedan, driven by D. E. Ripka, of State College, and a Chevrolet coupe, driven by B. D. Brisbin, of Centre Hall, crashed in that borough at a street intersection, while Mr. Ripke was going to Spring Mills to attend the funeral of his grandfather, the late Daniel Ripka. The cars were slightly damaged.

Five students of the Pennsylvania State College had a miraculous escape one day recently when a Ford touring car they occupied was struck by the evening passenger train from Lewisburg to Bellefonte. The students were part of a group that had been motoring through Huntingdon, Mifflin and Centre counties on a special investigating tour. There were five cars used by the students and they were traveling some distance apart. The fireman yelled to the engineer to stop and the latter, after quickly setting the brakes, said, "What is the matter?" "You hit a car," was the reply. As Engineer Paige, of Bellefonte, looked out on the firemen's side of the train he saw the wrecked auto, which had been swept aside by the locomotive. The worst injury was a broken nose, suffered by a Mr. Miller. The car was sold for $50 to Daniel Daup, of Centre Hall, near which place the accident occurred. One of the students had a tin can of Prince Albert tobacco in his hip pocket. The tin was crushed as though it had been hit by a hammer.

A Train Sixty Miles Long

We're adding to the Bell System in Pennsylvania this year $6,300,000 in new land and buildings.

And in 1924 we expect that the requirements will call for nearly eight millions more.

Into these and our other buildings and along the wire-ways of the state, we're installing in 1923 new telephone equipment which would require a train sixty miles long to haul.

In starting this train, the locomotive would travel a half a mile before the caboose was in motion.

This staggering amount of new switchboards, new cable, poles, wire and thousands of other necessary materials will be added to the Bell System in this state this year. More than thirty millions of dollars will be spent to meet the telephone demand in Pennsylvania.

Never before have such enormous quantities been added in so short a time.

COULD HARDLY DO HER WORK

Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Eat, Sleep and Feel Better Every Way

Chicago, Ill.—"I was weak and rundown and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time, and dizzy, and could not sleep and had no appetite. I tried different medicines for years, but they did not help me. Then I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for other women and gave it a trial. I began to eat better and could sleep, and consider it a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to my friends and will never be without it." —Mrs. M. OHLEN, 3640 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

It is such letters as these that testify to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This woman speaks from the fullness of her heart. She describes as correctly as she can her condition, first the symptoms that bothered her the most, and later the disappearance of those symptoms. It is a sincere expression of gratitude.

For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

FATE DIRECTING

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

UNCLE HORACE walked up and down the room, a flush of excitement upon his still handsome face.

"You will like Miss Belinda," he told his nephew. "I may as well confess that I was long ago engaged to her; she threw me over; but she has remained unmarried through the years, as have I. My old friend has written me that she is coming to visit in town this afternoon and will take dinner with us this evening. She will wait to be called for at the museum, which she first wishes to visit. Unfortunately a business appointment will prevent me from meeting her there, and the duty falls upon you, Bob."

Bob Meredith arose from his comfortable position on the couch to obey his uncle's request. He had every reason to please Uncle Horace and was mighty fond of this kind relative with whom he made his home.

"I will recognize the lady of your youthful dreams, no doubt," he replied. "To think my matter-of-fact uncle had his romance! Who would have believed it?"

Uncle Horace smiled and hurried to attend to the decorative details of the dinner.

So it happened that Mr. Bob Meredith, after a wearisome hour of futile waiting in the museum, sat down disgustedly upon one of the benches of the tapestry room. He closed his eyes against the glaring vision of the shining marble bust that confronted him—then opened them abruptly as a tinkling object rolled to rest at his feet. Bob stooped to pick up the object; his eyes opened wider at the surprising sight of a diamond ring. A lady's ring was this wandering jewel, which he held in his hand. He jumped to his feet, walked the length of the corridor, and was considering turning the property over to the attendant when, turning a second time, he saw a young woman upon her knees on the marble floor, in evident search of a missing article.

"You have lost—" began Horace.

"My diamond ring," answered the seeker, excitedly.

Bob Meredith was about to announce his finding of the jewel when a thought occurred to him—and far from honest Bob was duplicity, as a rule.

"If you have been in other parts of the gallery," he suggested, "it might be well to search there. May I help you? I have nothing else to do—waiting for a tardy arrival."

The young woman arose, gratefully accepting the offered assistance. "You see," she explained as they ascended together the steps to the art gallery, "it is very important that I find the ring at once. The ring was a gift before I went away to school—in fact, my aunt gave it to me, and tonight she has written that she must have it back. I was waiting for her here. I can't imagine why she should be so anxious for present possession of the ring—but if I cannot find it—"

The girl again looked up at Bob and again Bob experienced that strange, yet far from unpleasant thrilling sensation.

"You will find it," he confidently assured her.

But it was not until they had made the round of the galleries together and had returned to the tapestry room that Bob, handing over the jewel, confessed.

"Did you ever," he asked, "hear of love at first sight? Fate sent that ring rolling to my feet. Before you go—please, I beg of you—let me know at least where I may be able to see you again and be properly presented."

The girl smiled a whimsical smile. "Fate," she answered pertly, "must direct you."

She was gone.

An attendant approached the discouraged Bob. "Mr. Meredith?" he questioned. "Someone trying to get you over the telephone."

Uncle Horace's smooth tone reached him across the wire.

"Bob? You must have missed Miss Belinda. She came out in a taxi, after failing to find you. Come home, lad, and meet the most charming woman this side of Paradise."

Bob went home gloomily. The most charming woman this side of Paradise had recently left him, with a bewitching though mocking smile. When he met Miss Belinda, however, his apathy vanished; he had caught sight of a diamond flashing from Miss Belinda's slim finger—"the diamond" in its quaint setting. He was stammering out a courteous greeting when a second, unbelievable miracle happened. A younger replica of Miss Belinda's sweet face smiled at him—still merrily mocking across her aunt's shoulder. "My niece, Mr. Meredith," Miss Belinda was saying; "she, too, missed me at the museum, but we met, fortunately, as I was stepping into the taxi at the door."

"I understand now," remarked Miss Blue Eyes, as she and Bob sat at the perfectly appointed dinner table, "why Aunt was so eager to have her ring tonight. I believe she intends to renew her old engagement."

"And I," returned the happy Bob, "still believe in fate—and in love at first sight."

When Uncle Horace and Bob had returned from escorting their guests home Uncle Horace said awfully:

"To think of that dear woman cherishing that ring through all the years!"

Two Continents Once Connected

Professor in Report on Finds in China Says, America and Asia Were Joined.

New York.—Preliminary scientific studies on some of the Mongolian collections of the American Museum of Natural History from its third Asiatic expedition, which, under the leadership of Prof. Roy Andrews, landed at Victoria, B. C., were made public recently.

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, head of the museum, describes the collections made in 1922. The collections made in 1923, which include a fossilized dinosaur egg, are still in China awaiting transshipment to this country.

Professor Osborn, in his report, makes it known that the fossilized remains of prehistoric monsters found in Mongolia show that there was a land-bridge between America and Asia in the later Eocene age, or the new era period. The discoveries, the report adds, constitute new evidence on the history of life and pierces the mystery of a continent which hitherto has been a secret to the paleontologists of the world.

The report says in part:

"Besides the dinosaurs discovered in the Cretaceous period, the expedition has identified a whole series of Tertiary mammal formations. Four Eocene, two Oligocene, one Miocene and one Pliocene horizon have been distinguished, each with its distinct fossil fauna, and from some of them very large collections of different kinds of animals have been secured, including complete skulls and skeletons.

Related to Western Species.

"All of these animals are new species, but some are nearly related to American or European animals. Some belong to the wholly unknown races, and scientists are puzzling their brains to set them in their proper niche in history.

"The discovery of cadurcotherium, a type of rhinoceros hitherto known from teeth and jaws from France and India, is now further known by a fine skull and part of a skeleton from Mongolia. The Mongolian monster is in reality a new species, though the American Museum of Natural History has upper and lower jaw fragments of paratypes. It roamed the world about 1,500,000 years ago.

"Fossilized remains have also been found of species closely related to the gigantic titanotheres and small lophiodonts of America, belonging to the perissodactyl family of ungulates of the Tertiary period. This clearly shows that there must have been a landbridge between the countries in the later Eocene period, some 2,000,000 years ago.

"The huge baluchitherium, a monster quadruped closely related to the rhinoceros, was found in the Gobi desert in Baluchistan in September, 1922. It has also been found in Turkestan and northwest India, but never outside of Asia. Associated with its remains in Mongolia were found rodents related distantly to the African molerat and others close to American and European fossil species and some of entirely new families.

"One extinct Mongolian beast of carnivorous habits, hyaenodon, appears to have ranged some 1,800,000 years ago over Europe, Asia, Africa and North America. Others of this type are related to those found in the phosphorite beds in France, while some have American affinities.

Tracing Mammal Life.

"The succession of mammal faunas from Mongolia will make it possible to trace the evolution of mammal life in Asia in comparison with the contemporary life in Europe and America, and to demonstrate the actual course of evolution and migration of many races hitherto largely a matter of much disputed theories. It may, indeed, disprove or modify some of our favorite theories and will remove others from the realm of hypothesis to that of proved conclusions. Until the evidence is all to hand and sufficiently studied, it would be rash to say what it will prove, but it assuredly constitutes a great mass of new evidence on the history of life and lifts the veil from a continent which has hitherto been terra incognita to the paleontologist.

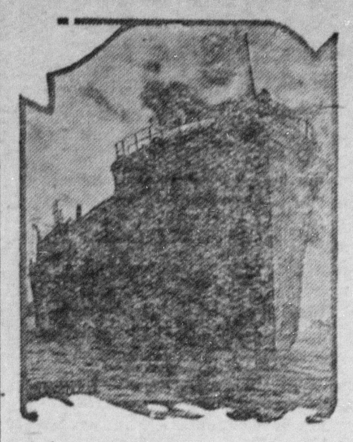
"The species which I have described give a most interesting American aspect to the fauna of this region of Mongolia in Upper Eocene time. There are in addition two new species of protitantherium, also huge mammals. It is yet to be proved that they belonged to the same geologic age.

"The expedition of 1923 adds a large number and variety of titanotheres from Mongolia, apparently of Upper Eocene and Lower Oligocene ages. The last age is about 100,000 years after the former. This material represents three or four species and probably three genera. The animals are very large, medium and small. The titanotheres must have been exceedingly abundant."

Shock Kills Man on Wet Garage Floor

Port Chester, N. Y.—John Colantino, 39, was electrocuted when, standing on a wet floor, he attempted to insert a high-powered electric bulb in a drop light socket in his garage at Main and Mill streets. It is believed there was a short circuit in the light fixture. Samuel Maiden attempted to pull Colantino away and was himself severely shocked. Colantino died within a few minutes.

OCTORARA IN FLAMES



A beautiful view of a burning vessel—but this one is being purposely destroyed. The ship, the Octorara, like many others, was one of the wooden ships built during the war by the United States shipping board for the Emergency Fleet corporation. The ships have been purchased by the Western Marine and Salvage company and are being dismantled and then burned in the Potomac river near Quantico, Va.

Rebels Marched to Their Death

New York.—Lifting of the press censorship which for the last year prevented publication of the story of the ill-fated "revolution" of July, 1922 in Brazil, has brought to light for the first time the facts concerning one of the most remarkable battles in the history of warfare. It was a battle of 24 men against a regiment armed with machine guns, waged to death in a suburb of the city of Rio de Janeiro.

The "revolution" itself is all but forgotten. The causes that led up to it have been removed by the election and inauguration of a new president and the position of the present government is as solid and stable as though the events of a year ago had never transpired.

The attempted coup d'etat came to naught because the government was forewarned of the revolutionary intrigue, taking steps to forestall it.

Rebels Seize Fortress.

At 10 o'clock the night of July 4 the Rio revolutionaries took possession of the fortress of Copacabana. They were then 34 in number. Later they were joined by several civilians but, before the end, enough desertions had taken place to bring the total down to the 24 who actually took part in the battle.

By daylight the rebel garrison knew that the uprising was a failure and that their fate was sealed, for the other forts in the mouth of the bay, which were to have joined the movement, failed to answer to the signals previously agreed on. The garrison of Copacabana might have made its escape any time before the sixth but it declined to do so, at first hoping against hope for the arrival of aid from the interior and later preferring death to ignominous flight.

For two days that preceded this South American Balaklava, it was as strange a campaign as ever was imagined. The garrison of the fort took a few pot shots at the arsenal and other conspicuous and isolated landmarks and the government artillery sent a few shells back in reply, but there was no real engagement.

Decide to Attack Army.

Perhaps the most fantastical feature of this strange siege was the fact that all during it the defenders of the fort were in constant telephone communication with the city and it was over the telephone that final and conclusive news was received of the failure of the revolution.

After the receipt of that news a council of war was held. There was only one thing for the "heroes of the fort" to do and they did it. That was to start out for the city, held by the Brazilian army, and see how far they could go.

What they did was absolute self-immolation in the service of an ideal, mistaken or otherwise. It may have been equaled in the past, but it has never been excelled, for every man in the little company knew he was going to his death and for no other purpose than that merely of avoiding the eventual necessity of surrender. Word was received from the government offering generous terms in exchange for a capitulation of the fort.

Rebel Band Annihilated.

At 3 o'clock July 6 the 28 men who remained armed with rifles and revolvers, commenced their historic march on Rio. In a loose and somewhat straggling formation they proceeded directly down the Avenida Atlantico with the beach on their right hand and on the left the luxurious homes of Copacabana.

Several times Lieut. Siqueira Campos called out to his followers that none of them need feel bound by military discipline to continue and that what they did must be of their own volition. Men and women appeared along the line of march, offering food and water. Many of the women, falling on their knees weeping, begged the invaders to desist from carrying out their tragic purpose. Four of the marchers withdrew and made their escape. But the rest kept on. They walked slowly, looking neither to right nor left.

The government troops were encountered about half way down the beach, a regiment of them ambuscaded in the side streets that lead down to the avenue and the sea. There was a burst of machine gun fire and two of the marchers fell mortally wounded. The rest ran for a ditch along the sidewalk that had been left by workers who had been laying sewer pipe, and there intrenched themselves to give battle. The fight did not have long to last, for 22 men in a shallow trench partly enfiladed by machine gun and rifle fire could not long remain alive. Twenty-two of the little band that marched out from the fort were killed; one was taken, wounded; one made good his escape by swimming for it. The July revolution was over.—Detroit News.

Novel Task for the President

President Coolidge had a novel job the other day and one which he apparently enjoyed—that of picking a bear for the National Zoological park in Washington. B. R. Pearson drove all the way from Nebraska in a covered auto truck with two bears and when he drove up to the executive mansion the President came out to look them over.

Father John's Medicine Is Made Under Watchful Care of Experts

At the laboratory where Father John's Medicine is made, and this great building, by the way, is devoted exclusively to the making of this one medicine, very high standards are maintained in every department.

The various ingredients are subjected to most exacting tests and are then prepared under the watchful eye of experts who have had years of experience in making what has come to be recognized as the greatest body builder.

Father John's Medicine is a scientific blending of cod liver oil with other ingredients by means of specially designed apparatus.

The Laboratory and Executive Offices

The preparation is untouched by human hands from the opening of the original containers until the bottle cap is sealed in place by automatic machines.

Years of study and research have been devoted to developing the process of compounding, and while the formula remains unchanged, its method of preparation has been so improved that it stands today as the finest blending of cod liver oil and other ingredients obtainable.

It is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

THANKSGIVING DAY 1923

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

THANKSGIVING Day, 1923! The people of the United States of America should celebrate this truly American holiday with heartfelt enthusiasm. For even the most casual comparison of things here and abroad should make us thankful that we are Americans and at home in America. This is not a preachment, but really the churches should be quite as crowded on the last Thursday in November as are the places of amusements, to say the least. Certainly we have much for which to be thankful as a nation, and as a Christian people we should make public thanksgiving as "the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace." The man who cannot see the hand of Divine Providence in our American history is indeed blind.

Suppose the American people went in mass to their churches Thanksgiving morning and made public return of thanks to Divine Providence, they could say in perfect truth words to this effect:

Almighty God, we thank Thee on this Thanksgiving Day

That we are at peace with ourselves and with all the world;

That our land is still the United States of America;

That Old Glory flies in greater grandeur than ever;

That we are still freemen, as in the beginning;

That our homes are our own and inviolate;

That no foreign Overlord orders our destinies;

That still ours is "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness";

That no pauper's dole is our portion;

That prosperity beyond our proportion is ours;

That it is our hand that is stretched forth to the starving of other lands;

That the Red Death is held at bay;

That Thy hand, as ever, still guides this nation;—

For these things, Almighty God, we thank Thee.

* * * * * * *

And as for the rest of the day, the Thanksgiving dinner is the main thing—not entirely for the sake of the feast itself, but largely because the feast is the crowning touch of a day that is peculiarly a day of the home and the family. A man with money in his pocket can buy a turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Day almost anywhere from Plymouth Rock to Cabrillo and from Peskan to Tumacacori, but if he has a home and isn't there he's apt to be mighty lonesome. True it is—and more's the pity—that a good many Americans in these latter days live in apartments and off the delicatessen shops, but just the same there is many an old-fashioned home left where an old-fashioned family will eat an old-fashioned Thanksgiving Day dinner of turkey and fixin's and "punkin" pie—which is one of the many things for which we should give thanks.

Nobody should be ashamed of looking forward to the Thanksgiving turkey. The turkey is a noble bird, worthy of the day. And Thanksgiving Day should give us our first taste of him. The housewife who will serve turkey on her table before Thanksgiving should be—well, say it yourself. And if she knows her business she will not have a lot of folderols and dofunnies before the turkey. When a man is turkey hungry he wants it brought in the very first thing. And an expeditious carver finds great favor in his eyes. Turkey, stuffin', mashed potato, gravy and cranberries—that's the feast! After that the good housewife can bring along all the goodies she likes—the rest is anti-climax anyway, excepting possibly the pumpkin pie and cheese.

At Plymouth Rock nowadays stands an heroic statue of Massasoit, head chief of all the Indian tribes between Cape Cod and Narragansett bay. Incidentally he was a good friend and ally of the Pilgrims, but he deserves the statue if only for the fact that he introduced them to the wild turkey and the pumpkin. It seems to be taken for granted that roast turkey, cranberry sauce, succotash and pumpkin pie were served at that first Thanksgiving dinner in 1621 when the Pilgrims celebrated the gathering of their first harvest. Probably they were. Anyway, the woods were full of turkeys and the Indians had evolved an agricultural scheme that was as simple as it was efficient. They planted corn in rows and beans in the same hills to climb up the cornstalks and pumpkins between the rows to shade the ground and keep down the weeds—and all cultivated with one hoeing!

* * * * * * *

The wild turkey, alas! has traveled far on the way of the great buffalo herds that once covered the plains and of the vast flocks of passenger pigeons that once darkened the skies. But the tame turkey has come to take his place and has marched across the continent with the American people. He has done that in more senses than one, inasmuch as he has practically abandoned New England and the Middle states for the West and the Southwest.

Why our Thanksgiving bird should be called turkey is one of the mysteries. He originated here. America gave him to the world. He is our own bird—"made in America." And of all the domestic birds about our farms and poultry yards the turkey is the only one that is strictly our own.

When the European reached the Western Hemisphere he found turkeys plentiful in Central America, Mexico, the United States and Canada. The southern birds were smaller and darker than those of the north. In Mexico there were both wild and tame turkeys, the natives raising the latter for food on an extensive scale.

Record of the date of the appearance of the first turkeys in Europe is missing, but the early Spanish explorers took back birds to Spain. From there they quickly spread to France and England. The American turkey was a good thing and Europe was quick to recognize it. By the end of the Seventeenth century they were very generally bred throughout Europe.

The wild turkey of the United States is a magnificent bird. Originally he was as numerous as the beaver or the deer—literally uncountable. For a long time they were plentiful. They learned the way of the hunter early and developed a cunning often more than a match for that of the man with a gun. Within the experience of living men Michigan, for instance, was so full of them that a man walking through the forests from Detroit to St. Joe was never out of sight of the flocks hurrying off through the trees. Then they seemed to disappear all at once all over the country. Civilization and settlement probably had as much to do with it as the shotgun and rifle. Civilization inevitably drives out wild life, even where wild life is protected by law. Clearance of timberland, draining of swamps, cultivation of open country deprived the turkey of his natural habitat. Now a place wild enough to afford refuge to the turkey is a wilderness indeed.

* * * * * * *

The tame turkey of the United States is an individual sort of bird, with ways and notions of his own. This makes him a hard bird to raise and accounts in part for his migration to the West and Southwest.

The decline of the turkey growing industry in the nearby territory which formerly supplied the great eastern markets is doubtless due to the appearance and spread of a peculiar disease which poultrymen know as blackhead. When the disease gets established in a flock it is almost impossible to grow turkeys to maturity. This disorder seems to be due to the action of a micro-organism, but the facts regarding the specfic organism, the methods of infection and how the trouble may be prevented or controlled, are still to be worked out.

Another limiting factor in turkey raising is range. The turkey is essentially a bird of the open spaces and has never been domesticated to anything like the same degree as chickens. To do well it needs unrestricted freedom, full liberty to wander at will over fields and through woodland, where it finds its natural food.

Obviously, a sizable flock of turkeys will do much damage to growing crops, where farms are relatively small.

Anyway, in comparatively recent years one could find nice flocks of these meaty birds on a large proportion of the farms of New England and the Middle states, but now such flocks are so rare as to be almost a curiosity in this territory.

It is estimated that Illinois does not produce enough birds to supply more than one-tenth of the state's demand, including Chicago. This means that outside territories must supply turkeys for Chicago consumers.

Whether it is in the blizzard sections of the Dakotas and Wyoming or under the scorching sun of the Southwest, gobblers seem to thrive if given plenty of range where they can fill their crops with grasshoppers and bugs. But they must have this, and poultrymen east of the Missouri river therefore cannot compete favorably.

In the comparatively new territory of the West, turkey raising is being taken up by many on a large scale. Texas, New Mexico, Pacific coast states, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska and the Dakotas are raising more and more turkeys for eastern and central west markets every year. The Black Hills district of South Dakota and Wyoming contribute largely, too. The largest turkey ranch in the country is thought to be in Nevada. The new home of the turkey is apparently to be the American Southwest.

* * * * * * *

This does not mean that the business will stop in the central west. It does mean, however, that competition in the west will have to be dealt with and that more intensive breeding methods must be resorted to, with the idea of producing a high-class strain of turkeys that will be needed by western poultrymen.

If midwesterners will devote more time to breeding stock, to sell at a fancy price, and pay less attention to turkeys for meat purposes, the competitive angle probably will not be serious.

How the prices have soared! In 1880 the prices were these: The finest turkeys sold at 9 cents and fair at 7½ cents.

* * * * * * *

A resolve that every good American should make is to have as good a time every Thanksgiving Day as is possible and make the Thanksgiving dinner the crowning feature of the day. For the chemists, you know, will get us before long, if we don't watch out. They are threatening synthetic food, balanced rations of it, and all that sort of thing. And then what will become of our Thanksgiving dinner? Here's the way one of them—his name is suppressed out of consideration for his family—talks of the way the chemists will get us—not yet, but soon:

"Synthetic chemistry must face the problem of making synthetic food. A mountain of limestone and a waterfall supply the chemical raw materials and energy required to make sugars and starches. A balanced ration will be evolved, possibly largely synthetic, which will eliminate all digestive disturbances and at the same time make our minds and bodies more efficient to an extent almost beyond belief. At that time humanity will look back on the eating of promiscuous viands in very much the way that we look back on the drunken debauches of the Middle ages."

* * * * * * *

Some of these days an American musician will earn everlasting fame and the gratitude of his countrymen by writing just the right kind of a Thanksgiving Song—one that expresses in both words and music the real spirit of Thanksgiving Day. Christmas, Easter, Independence Day and many of our other national holidays are well off as to appropriate musical expression. But what is there for Thanksgiving Day? To be sure, we might sing "Home, Sweet Home," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee Ribber," or even the "Doxology." But none of these famous airs is quite adequate to the occasion. Yes, immortal fame is the sure reward of anyone who shall write a song that voices the spirit of Thanksgiving Day in a way to awaken a response in the hearts and minds of the American people.

WHITE SUITOR OF INDIAN GIRL SHOT

Wisconsin Youth Believed Slain by Jealous Lovers of Chippewa Maid.

KILLED IN BUNKHOUSE

Ashland, Wis.—Indian superstition and a mystifying aloofness that resents paleface interference blocked the police of Ashland, Wis., recently in their investigation of the death of Emerson Thornton, nineteen years old, who was found shot to death in the old Chippewa village of Odanah.

Olive Stoddard, eighteen-year-old Indian maid with whom Thornton became infatuated and whose covert smiles are believed to have caused her Indian sweethearts to slay him in jealousy, assumed the air of "the woman in the case," but refused to throw light on the shooting.

Miss Stoddart is thoroughly American. She never wears Indian costume and she is a cultured youug woman with an attractive personality.

Baffled by the reticence of the Indian villagers, the coroner and district attorney refused to call an inquest. They called Thornton a suicide.

But Thornton's relatives, most of whom live in Racine, are sure the boy was murdered. They are determined to press the inquiry. Young Thornton had no reason to commit suicide, the relatives aver.

An Empty Pistol Lay at His Side.

So far as is known, Miss Stoddart did not reject the advances of the white youth, it was said. She is said to have encouraged him to stay in the village, where he had just found his long-lost father, living as a squawman.

Sought Father Fourteen Years.

Thornton had sought his father fourteen years. When he found him living with a squaw the boy was stricken with disappointment.

He then met Miss Stoddart. It was a case of love at first sight for both. They were together conspicuously.

But the young braves resented the intrusion.

Despite hostility on all sides, young Thornton announced he had decided to stay in Odanah and marry Miss Stoddart. The next morning he was found shot through the heart in a deserted bunkhouse. An empty pistol lay at his side.

The Indians sincerely believe it was the proposed misunion of white man and red girl that brought about the tragedy.

Bandit's Victim Tied to Tree for Four Days

Hagerstown, Md.—John W. Snyder, forty years old, of Hagerstown, staggered into the home of David Bostetter, west of the city, and told a story of having been tied to a tree four days and nights by a holdup man who relieved him of $40 in cash and his automobile.

Snyder is in a serious condition from exposure, and is under the care of physicians.

He was on the way to the summer place of A. K. Coffman at Wilson, six miles west of Hagerstown, when at 7 o'clock in the morning a stranger walking along the road asked him for a ride. He picked him up, and had driven but a short distance when he felt a jab in the side. Turning, he found the stranger covering him with a revolver. Snyder was ordered to get in the back seat of the machine, where he was covered with the automobile rug.

The stranger started the car and drove for about a half hour, finally stopping in a wooded area. Ordering Snyder out, the hold-up man tied his victim hand and foot and lashed him to a sapling some distance from the road and drove away. For four days Snyder tried to release himself, and it was not until 10 o'clock that he wore through the last rope and dragged himself to the nearest house.

He was brought to Hagerstown for medical attention. Besides suffering from exposure, his wrists were badly torn by his struggles.

NURSE GAINS 15 LBS. ON TANLAC

Miss Mary Early, 1531 North 20th St., Omaha, Neb., practical nurse for the past fifteen years, prompted by gratitude for the Tanlac treatment, because of its benefits to her and others, recently gave out the following statement:

"Tanlac is the one medicine I can recommend knowing full well it merits the highest praise, not only because of what it has done for me, but because of what I have seen it do for others. My brother was flat on his back with typhoid for a long time, and afterwards was so weak he could barely walk from one chair to another. I gave him Tanlac and it was simply marvelous the way it built him up.

"Nursing him through this illness left me weak and exhausted. I couldn't eat anything to speak of and my food hurt me, but Tanlac gave me a keen appetite, strengthened my digestion, and I gained fifteen pounds in weight and am still in perfect health. As a nurse and user of Tanlac, I give it my unqualified endorsement."

Costs Less to Keep Clean.

More than 250,000 deaths and over 4,500,000 cases of serious illness annually are ascribed by Federal and State health reports to needlessly unsanitary conditions. It is an amazing fact that most of this needless lack of sanitation is found, not in the cities, but among the rural and small-town population.

Yet wholly sanitary conditions may be brought about in the country just as quickly and easily as in the city. The actual expenditure involved is very small, especially when you consider how much the family's health will be improved as a result. It will assure also, of course, a great improvement in comfort.

Septic tanks, privy vaults, protection for domestic water supplies, ratproof outbuildings—all of these can be provided for a little cost and a little work by any man. BELL STOCK OVERSUBSCRIBED

Public Enthusiastic in Securing Shares in Telephone Company.

It is estimated by The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania that subscriptions for $50,000,000 of its 6½ per cent preferred stock were taken by employees during the last four days of last week. Complete tabulation of subscriptions has not been made at this hour, but C. L. Ritchie, manager of the securities department of the Bell Company, states his expectation that the issue of 200,000 shares, par value of $20,000,000, has been subscribed 250 per cent.

This is especially remarkable in view of the fact that not more than 20 shares could be subscribed for by any one person. Approximately 75,000 persons subscribed for the issue, which will be allotted among applicants. A large percentage of the subscriptions obtained provide for purchase of the stock on the installment plan at the rate of $10 per share per month.

Will Speak in M. E. Church.

Ex-Judge Johnson, of Lewisburg, legal adviser in the department of public instruction in Harrisburg, will speak next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the M. E. church at Milesburg, of which Rev. J. E. Andreas is pastor. His subject will be "Our Constitution," a lecture which he has presented in other towns on various occasions and which is highly interesting. This is one of a series of patriotic meetings being held in Centre County under John W. Yeisley, organization manager for the Pennsylvania State camp, P. O. S. of A. In addition to Mr. Johnson's lecture—which is awarning as well as an encouragement to all good citizens—there will be a special musical program and selections by Wetzler's band. A record breaking attendance is anticipated as every P. O. S. of A. camp in Centre County has been requested to have a good representation at the meeting.

County Institute Y. P. Workers.

Every county in the state is being instructed in the big advance movement of the churches and Sunday schools in securing more effective and co-operative work for young people. A staff of specialists are being sent out by the State S. S. Association to conduct institutes in every county. Miss Esther I. Williams, associate director of Y. P. work, was assigned to Centre County, and the institute was held on Monday afternoon and evening in the Methodist church, Bellefonte. Twenty-three Sunday schools were represented and the attendance fifty-three. The coming merger of the denominational Y. P. societies was explained and the unified program of work outlined. Discussions on the every day problems of the school and church were discussed very frankly.

Young Man Stabbed in Back.

Russell Koon, one of a party of young men of State College, who undertook to teach a citizen of our neighbor borough a lesson, was stabbed in the back, the knife of his assailant inflicting a wound that cut across three ribs and was so deep that his kidneys could be plainly seen. The wound was closed by stitches and no serious effects are anticipated. The young men of the party intended to punish the townsman because of reports branding him as one who needed such treatment. The boys erred in taking matters into their own hands and, if the person they desired to punish is not abiding by the law, the matter should be properly reported to District Attorney James C. Furst.

Inspecting Coal Shipments.

The entire force of mine inspectors in the anthracite coal field are reported as having started an intensive campaign to investigate alleged impurities in anthracite coal shipments. The inspectors received specific instructions to visit every colliery in the region and to carefully inspect the coal as it is mined and prepared for shipment. The investigation was ordered by Governor Pinchot following refusal of the anthracite operators to co-operate with him in lowering the cost of coal.

TB Is Cattle Menace.

TB, or tuberculosis, is considered a grave menace to the dairy and cattle industry in Centre County and there is now available state funds for indemnity purposes for a limited time only to be used in conjunction with efforts to eradicate this dangerous and "catching" disease. For application blanks and information regarding this work call the Farm Bureau office, in the Court House J. N. Robinson, farm agent.

Dog Licenses Here.

County Treasurer L. Frank Mayes has received 3,500 dog licenses and tags from the state officials which are now being issued to applicants. About 20 have been issued to date. The fee is $1.10 for a male dog and $2.10 for a female. Where application is made by mail the applicant must state the breed, sex, age and color of the dog and must enclose two cents for postage.

Quarantined for Diphtheria.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sprankle, on East High street, was quarantined for diphtheria on Friday by George Glenn, local health officer. This is the first case of diphtheria reported this fall. There are a number of cases of chicken pox but conditions are generally considered good.

Auto Struck Wagon.

Robert Muthler, 30 years old, of Beech Creek, was severely injured about the head on Friday evening when a passing motor car struck the wagon in which he was driving to Lock Haven. The accident occurred near Lock Haven and Mr. Muthler was hurriedly taken to the hospital in that city. It is feared the young man's skull was fractured.

Thanksgiving Service.

Bellefonte will have a Union Thanksgiving service on Thursday, the 29th at 10 A. M. which will be held in the Presbyterian church. The Rev. Dr. T. W. Young will bring the message. A special offering will be received for the local hospital. The service will be about an hour in length, which will not interfere with the dinner hour.

Studebaker Car Damaged.

The Studebaker touring car of Cornelius Taylor, of State College, was damaged considerably on Friday about noon when it went over the embankment and upset to the south side of the new concrete bridge east of Lemont. Mrs. Taylor was driving and had several children with her. They were fortunate in escaping serious injury.
